The Frank Hurds, in Bogota, N. J., on with a splash. His yells brought his arm was and more especially of your numerous friends in the profession." Hackensack, announced to-day that the body had been secretly exhumed from undertaking establishment in Ridgefield Park, where it has been since Jan. 23. In making public this fact the District-Attorney and Coroner A. D. Lees of Hackensack, announced that an inquest into Baker's death would begin on Monday or Tuesday next, when would be gone into. The body was exhumed and brought from Boston to Hackensack and the inquest was determined upon after a report made by Dr. William Boos, the Massachusetts General Hospital. who made a chemical and microscopical examination of Baker's viscera and in ternal organs and found the body was reeking with arsenic.

every detail surrounding the death

This examination was made with the greatest care and under the direction of Edward F. Baker, of Boston a prother of the dead man. Edward Baker had insisted from the first that his brother was murdered by polson to get hold of his estate, which has bee uppraised at $600,000.

Made Child His Heiresa-

Walter Baker left one-third of bis property to Natalle Hurd, the four-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank The shild died on Feb. 21. and her inheritance, if upheld, will go to her parents. The child's death was due to scarlet fever. The Hurds have an ther child Brownie Hurd. He is an invalid since birth. The balance of Baker's estate was left to Harvard college and to two nephews.

Edward Baker began a contest of hi death. The case is set for trial in the Massachusetts courts on April 13. Little Natalle Hurd was richly dowed with bequests. Besides the $200. 000 left her by Baker she shared in he maternal grandmother's estate to th George Hurd, her grandfather, had planned to make her sole helress to hi fortune, consisting of several millions Walter F. Baker's body was buried in plot. The coffin was encased in Forest Hill Cemetery, in the family massive steel case of unusual thickness which was hermetically sealed and riv eted When Edward Baker's investiga. tions had arrived at a point where he was satisfied that official action should be taken, be communicated the discoveries of his detectives to Prosecute Koester, in Bergen County, New Jersey On the Prosecutor's suggestion, th body was taken to Bergen County tha It might be viewed by a Coroner's jury preliminary to the inquest.

The exhumation of the body and I' removal from Massachusetts were accompanied by the greatest secrecy and surrounded with most dramatic accessories.

Brought at Midnight.

It was after midnight when the cof fin arrived in New York and was conveyed over the ferry into New Jersey Instead of being taken to Bogota where the Hurds still lived, or to Hackensack, where is the undertaking shop of ex-Coroner Ricardo, who had embalmed the body in the early morning hours, the coffin was deposited in an undertaking shop in Ridgefield Park. There it has remained for six weeks awaiting the empanelling of a Coroner's jury.

Mrs. Hurd's sister, Mrs. Natalie Young, whose divorce from George W. Young, the financier and banker, was announced within the last year, was a witness to a holographic will which turned up among Walter Baker's papers turned up among Walter Baker's papers after his death. She is also living in this city at the Hotel Nottingham, in West Thirtieth street. The other witness was Miss Mary Maud Munn, a weethy woman of Bogota an intimate friend of the Hurds.

Other witnesses at the inquest will include Undertaker Ricardo, who embalmed the body, his assistant and several physicians who were called in when Walter Baker was dying, but who arrived after death. One doctor save a death certificate before daylight that Baker had died of Bright's disease and heart failure. Another doctor who wanted the embalming deferred announced in the Hurd house:

"This is a Coroner's case."

Walter F. Baker was dead and buried before the mysterious circumstances surrounding his visit to New York and his being stricken on the night of Oct. 26 were known to more than a dozen persons. Then The World tool the facts, and there began an investigation in which newspapers, police and private detectives worked for weeks. The Planerton agency was engaged by Edward Faker and Boston detectives were called into the case. Men were assigned from Headquarters and the Distriction Headquarters and the Hurds left Boxota about 6 o'clock in the evening for a trip to this city.
